Melbourne, Australia Stepping into a moment

“I spent the week in Melbourne visiting friends and noticed this strange-looking art installation as I strolled along the Yarra River in the city's Central Business District. Designed by Marcus O'Reilly, the work is called Red Stair Amphitheatre. A few people, who all happened to be wearing black, were enjoying their lunchbreak on the installation. It was actually one of the few bits of sightseeing I did in Melbourne – the weather was terrible, with lots of rain, so I didn't get a chance to go outside much.”

Magda Biskup, from Poland, lives near Sydney in Australia.
